(BODEN, BODIN, BOWDOIN)

FAMILY

Origin And Early History

1972887

MS. A. 9. 2. 1977-1978
The surnames Bowden, Bodine, Beaudoin including their many variations in spelling (Boden, Bodin, Bowdoin, etc.) are derived from the Baptismal Form meaning, "The son of Baldwin". Another source states that the derivation is from a local name meaning "Of Bowden", a parish in East Cheshire, England. Popularly and under the French influence, the above surnames have been passed down to the present day. Changes in spelling of the surname even by members of the same family have been common. Consequently, the ancestor of a present day Boden might have spelled his name Bodine or Beaudoin. The Bowdens were of Bowden Hall, County Derby, England in the 15th Century, yet they have a tradition that they are of Norman descent and that the name was originally Bodin. In 1572, two Protestant Walloons Nicholas and John Bowden settled in Rye, England. Early mention of the surname in England is shown as follows:

Bodin de Langebell (Co. Oxford-1273); Boyedinus de Gaunt (Lincoln - 1273); Bodyn de Kant (London citizen - 1273); Richard de Boden Moylle (1591); Margaret Bowden (widow) -1583; Thomas Boden (Co. Derby - 1594).

The Bodines (Bowdens) of New York, New Jersey and of America have their origin in the Family of Le Boudin or De Boudain and the antiquity of the surname is attested by the French Charters of the twelfth Century. The Family, Le Boudin was settled in Cambray, France, originally a district in the Low Countries as early as 1126. In France, the Family has played a prominent part in War and Peace and has given to the world, the noted

French Jurist and Political Economist Jean Bodin. Jean was a native of Angers, France, born May 31, 1530 and died of the plague at Laon, 1596. Jean Bodin, author of "LIVRES DE REPUBLIQUE" has been called the father of Political Science. The six books of Bodin form the ablest and most remarkable treatise extant on the philosophy of Government and Legislation. The family was also represented by Jean Francis Bodin, the Historian (Sept. 26, 1776-1829) and his equally noted son, also an Historian, Felix Bodin (Dec. 1795 - May 7, 1837). Dr. Pierre Joseph Bodin, the famous Deputy for the Department of the Loire who voted for the deportation of Louis XVI was also of this branch of the family. The line of descent of the Bodine (Bodin, Bowden, Boden, Beaudoin) Family originally from Cambray, France is as follows:

Jean Le Baudain, Seigneur de Villiers (Lord of Villiers) - 1376; Jean Le Baudain - Bishop's Chamberlain at Cambray -1419; Jean Le Baudain, (his son) -1459; Jean Le Baudain, Seigneur de Villiers - 1480; Guillaume Le Baudain of Cambray (his son); Daniel Bodin (his son), removed to Medis, France; Daniel Bodin (born at Medis), his son; Jean Bodine (his son), the French Huguenot who fled to London and later emigrated to Staten Island where he died in March 1695.

APPENDIX

Addendum: The Beaudoin Family (Bowdoin, Baudoin, Baudin, Bowden, Bodin)

Origin of Name And Early Settlement

The name Beaudoin and variations is actually of Teutonic origin. It is the French equivalent of Baldwin and means "Bold in Battle".

According to legend, first mention of the name traces as far back as Charlemagne. Charlemagne compelled his widowed sister, mother of the Carolingian hero of song and lay, Roland, to marry Ganelon, the Prince of Mayence, who was then created the Comte of Guenes. They had issue: Baudouin. Ganelon betrayed the French Army and Charlemagne in the battle against the Moors and only the sacrifice of Roland who held the pass at Carcasonne saved the day, while the French Army retreated. Ganelon was executed by the French monarch for his infamy. Charlemagne ordered Baudouin to be killed, but the child was spirited away by his mother to Brittany where the noble family of de Baudouin grew up and lived. In the 13th Century, a Baudouin was made Duc de Brabant and to this day, the name was associated with that Duchy which even the present heirs of Belgium use as a family name. One of the first three Crusader Kings to succeed Godfrey Bouillon to the throne of Jerusalem was Baudouine. There was a titled Baudouin Family in Tours and another in Bordeaux, France in the 13th Century. A Beaudouin was in the company of William the Conqueror and was given a Welsh Barony which exists to this present day, and was probably the ancestor of the Bowden, Bodin, Boden family in England.
